Short Biography of Ronald Martin

Born in San Francisco, California, Ronald Martin lived with his family in that area for five years before moving in 1990 to Mexico City, Mexico. In 2000, he moved back to the US to live in New Jersey and attend his final years of high school. He has shown his work in several exhibits within galleries and museums throughout the state. These establishments include the Noyse Museum, the Long Beach Island Foundation of the Arts and Sciences, and the New Jersey's Artist Alliance Gallery. Accomplishments that have been the highlights of Ron's artistic career are his attendance at the 2002 Governor's School of the Arts program, his appearance in both local and statewide newspaper articles, his winning of a first place prize in the "Clay in Mind" ceramics celebration, and his acceptance into the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art. Ron has tried to give back to the community for its hospitality by participating in volunteer organizations through the Southern Regional High School, such as the "Interact" Rotary International Club, the National Honors Society, and the National Art Honors Society.
